Bauman Moscow State Technical University, Moscow, 105005, Russia

Domestic higher education endures the difficult period of essential reforming. Thus many educational an institution of high level ceased to satisfy inquiries of a labor market and economy, both in the structural relation, and from the point of view of quality of training of specialists. Situation in leading known Higher Education Institutions it is considered on the example of the Moscow State Technical University of AD Bauman which graduates were always appreciated in domestic economy. Whether there corresponds Higher Education Institution to constantly changing requirements of economy and what helps his graduates to feel surely on a labor market?
