
Nationalization of the elite as public demand

© V.V. Legchilin

Bauman Moscow State Technical University, Moscow, 105005, Russia

The purpose of the study is to identify real political science content of the concept "nationalization of the elite". This concept is rather widely used in political analytics, however, studies that reveal essential characteristics of the process of gaining national status by political elite are practically lacking. The author for the first time describes the correlation of goal-setting and nationalization of the elite and proves the necessity to reject borrowing targets and indicators of social development from Western culture. The author regards return to independent historical creative work based on national cultural tradition as the essence of nationalization of the elite.

Keywords: political elite, values, goal-setting, nationalization of the political elite, objectives and indicators of social development

REFERENCES

- [1] Gellner E. Natsii i natsionalizm [Nations and Nationalism]. Moscow, 1991, p. 127, p. 23.
- [2] Keimen G. Razvitie veroterpimosti [Development of tolerance]. Available at: <http://www.istorya.ru/book/vekkonfl/05.php>
- [3] Kurginyan S. Sut' vremeni. Filosofskoe obosnovanie messianskikh pretenziy Rossii v XXI veke: v 4 tomakh [The essence of time. Philosophical justification of messianic claims in Russia in XXI century]. Moscow, MOF ETTs Publ., 2012.
- [4] Perkins J. Ispoved' ekonomicheskogo ubiytsy [Confessions of an Economic Hit Man]. Moscow, Pretekst Publ., 2012.
- [5] Proekt Rossiya [Project Russia]. Moscow, 2005, p. 50.
- [6] Fursov A.I. Mir, kotoryi my pokidaem, mir, v kotoryi my vstupaem, i mir mezhd u nimi. Defuturo, ili Istoriya budushchego [The world that we leave, the world we enter, and peace between them. Defuturo, or History of the Future]. Moscow, Politicheskii klass [The Political Class], AIRO-XXI Publ., 2008.

Legchilin V.V., (b. 1954) Ph.D., Assoc. Professor of the Political Science Department at Bauman Moscow State Technical University. e-mail: vv11754@yandex.ru
