The authors have studied the empirical data they obtained through observation and social study of value guidelines of Bauman university students. They pick up the problems they brought up in the article "Traditional, routine and innovative components of economic consciousness". The study of behaviour and inner motives of the students helps to reveal their value guidelines and their understanding of their own place in the world.

Keywords: estimation of the importance of the chosen speciality, achievement motivation, material and spiritual preferences, future vision, attitude to the professional growth.
