The article considers the categories of space and time on the basis of the I. Prigozhin's theory of matter self-organization, a new perusal of Hegel, K. Marx, L. von Mises and the latest research in the Russian philosophical ontology. The differences between the immanent and external time are presented. The dialectics of interrelations of space and time is revealed, alongside their possible regulative function in the realm of economy and finance.

Keywords: material system, space, time, internal time, activity, becoming, quality, dialectics
